About the talk:
COVID 19, the pandemic not only offered resistance to common man lives but also to the researchers. While tackling the tough time seems quite hard for everyone of us, focus to our work being a researcher is of utmost importance and thus the webinar will be all about. Through this we get to learn how to manage and adapt to the changes caused by COVID 19 by putting less resistance to our research work and thus keep a balance between research and normal life.
